Northwest Plumbing Heating & AC Announces Winter Readiness Campaign for Quad Cities Residents

December 02, 2025

DAVENPORT, Iowa - December 02, 2025 -
Northwest Plumbing Heating & AC has announced a comprehensive winter readiness campaign to help Quad Cities residents prepare their homes for the approaching cold season. The locally-owned company, which has served the area since 1923, is emphasizing the importance of early furnace maintenance and inspection to prevent unexpected heating failures during peak winter months.

The campaign comes as weather patterns indicate an earlier onset of cold temperatures across Iowa, prompting increased demand for heating system evaluations and repairs. The company has expanded its service capacity to accommodate the seasonal surge in furnace repair and installation requests while maintaining its commitment to 24-hour emergency service availability.

"With over a century of experience serving the Quad Cities, we understand how critical reliable heating is during Iowa winters," said Bill Durand, a representative from Northwest Plumbing Heating & AC. "Our winter readiness campaign focuses on helping homeowners identify potential heating issues before they become emergencies, ensuring families stay warm and comfortable throughout the cold months ahead."

The company's comprehensive heating services include repair and installation of gas, electric, and geothermal systems, along with annual maintenance programs designed to extend equipment life and improve efficiency. Their Service Partner Agreements provide preventative maintenance checks and waive after-hours service fees for enrolled customers.

Beyond heating services, Northwest Plumbing Heating & AC maintains year-round plumbing capabilities, addressing water heater repairs, drain cleaning, sump pump installations, and leak detection. This dual expertise allows the company to address multiple home comfort needs through a single service provider, streamlining maintenance and repairs for homeowners.

The company has enhanced its digital educational resources to help customers better understand their home systems. Through various platforms, including Facebook, the company shares maintenance tips, seasonal preparation guides, and troubleshooting advice. These resources complement their in-person services by empowering homeowners to recognize early warning signs of system problems.

To make essential heating upgrades more accessible, the company has partnered with GreenSky to offer financing options for qualifying customers. Additionally, their monthly special programs provide opportunities for scheduled maintenance and system replacements, with current promotions available through their website.

The winter readiness campaign represents the latest initiative from a company that has maintained strong community ties throughout its 100-year history.
