SANTA FE, NM - May 26, 2026 -
Full-service landscaping contractor now offers stone retaining wall repair and custom stonework for residential properties near Santa Fe

Evergreen Landscape Pros, a full-service landscaping contractor based in Santa Fe, New Mexico, announced the expansion of its hardscape and stonework services to homeowners in the Eldorado at Santa Fe community. The company now provides stone retaining wall repair, custom hardscape installation, and landscape design across the 6,088-resident neighborhood, which is recognized as the largest unincorporated community in New Mexico.

The expansion addresses growing demand for professional hardscape services in the greater Santa Fe area, where the high-desert climate and distinctive Southwestern architecture require specialized knowledge of local materials and terrain. Evergreen Landscape Pros brings combined expertise in irrigation, landscape design, and hardscape construction, allowing the company to manage full-scope outdoor projects without the need for multiple contractors. The Eldorado at Santa Fe community, known for its 4,000-acre nature preserve and protected open spaces, presents unique landscaping challenges that call for experienced stonework and drainage planning.

"We built this company around doing things the right way, which means careful planning before any stone is laid or any wall is built," said Kevin Lopez, Owner of Evergreen Landscape Pros. "In a community like Eldorado, where the landscape is part of what draws people to live here, our job is to work with the natural environment rather than against it. That starts with preparation and honest communication with every homeowner."

Evergreen Landscape Pros offers six core service categories that now extend to the Eldorado area: landscape design and installation, landscape maintenance and restoration, hardscape and stonework, patios, portals, and walkways, irrigation and water management, and fencing in materials including coyote, latilla, cedar, and stone. The company operates from its offices in Santa Fe, New Mexico, and serves multiple communities throughout the region, including Espanola, Galisteo, Lamy, Pecos, Pojoaque, Seton Village, Tesuque, and White Rock.

Retaining wall deterioration is among the most common structural issues faced by homeowners in the Eldorado area, where shifting desert soils and seasonal freeze-thaw cycles place ongoing stress on masonry and stone structures. Evergreen Landscape Pros reported that stone retaining wall repair requests have increased steadily from properties built in the 1980s and 1990s, many of which are now reaching the point where original installations require professional assessment. The company's approach begins with a site evaluation and design consultation before any physical work is scheduled, a process intended to reduce the likelihood of repeat repairs.

The Eldorado at Santa Fe community has drawn consistent residential interest due to its proximity to downtown Santa Fe, access to four trailheads within its nature preserve, and a family-oriented atmosphere that includes parks, community centers, and athletic facilities. As property owners in the area invest in maintaining and upgrading their outdoor spaces, the availability of a single contractor capable of handling both landscape and hardscape projects reduces coordination time and allows for more cohesive design outcomes. Evergreen Landscape Pros noted that bundling services such as irrigation installation alongside patio or walkway construction has become a frequent request from Eldorado homeowners.

The company emphasized that all project timelines and material selections are communicated to clients before work begins. Evergreen Landscape Pros does not subcontract its core services, and its crew handles each phase of a project from initial grading through final stonework placement. The company currently offers free estimates to residential property owners in Eldorado at Santa Fe and surrounding communities.
